

Post Diagnosis Support

- Seeking a diagnosis of the cause of memory problems which might indicate the onset of dementia is something families often go through alone.
- Often, receiving a diagnosis of dementia is not accompanied by the support to help cope, and what help is available to come to terms with a changed future.
- Having somewhere to turn to for information and advice is a godsend when you have just been given a diagnosis, and are struggling to cope with caring for a loved one. The Debenham Project offers information, advice and support.
